Annual Friends of History Lecture
Nick Cullather
Thursday April 3

10 am, David Kinley Hall, Room 1
Professor Nick Cullather will lead a discussion of his most recent book
The Hungry World: America’s Cold War Battle Against Poverty in Asia

3 pm, Gregory Hall, Room 311
Prof. Cullather will Lecture on “Doris Day and the Economists: Imagining the Expert in the Development Decade” on representations of development experts in Hollywood during the Cold War.

A member of the History faculty at Indiana University, Prof. Cullather focuses on United States foreign relations, specializing in the history of intelligence, development, and nation-building. He is interested in the mechanisms of power through which the United States uses aid, covert operations, diet, statistics, and technology to reconstruct the social reality of countries around the world. His most recent book The Hungry World (2010), explores the use of food as a tool of psychological warfare and regime change during the Cold War.

Program made possible by the generous support of The Friends of History